One law enforcement's identification with the group, or single individuals, was so strong that they tried to warn Chester or his associates.